

Study and Induction week (NAS1A01)

Preliminary University Studies Department

Course description

The first week in the Preliminary University Studies Department is an induction week for new students whereby students receive an overall introduction to the University as well as guidance on how to begin studying after a long break from academic work. The organization of the program will be outlined as well as study techniques, study pressure and time management discussed by the University's Study Advisor who will also detail the services and support that are available. Students will also be introduced to the school's intranet. Furthermore, students will be shown how to organize their computers to get the best out of their studies. Finally, a great emphasis is placed upon team building between students during the induction week as it is very important for students to get to know each other and thus be able to work together to achieve the same academic goal.

Competence level

1

Credits

1

By the end of the course

Students should be able to:

- organize their computer
- manage the learning management system
- take on a demanding pre-university study
- know the main requirements of the school and teachers
- be loosely acquainted with the other students in the department